Re: Comments on New Source Performance Standards for Greenhouse Gas Emissions From New, Modified, and Reconstructed Fossil Fuel-Fired Electric Generating Units; Emission Guidelines for Greenhouse Gas Emissions From Existing Fossil Fuel-Fired Electric Generating Units; and Repeal of the Affordable Clean Energy Rule

Docket #EPA-HQ-OAR-2023-0072

Dear Administrator Regan:

Climate change is a health emergency, which is why I am urging EPA to finalize strong limits on carbon pollution from power plants. Coal and gas power plants are among the main drivers of climate change, which is leading to more frequent and intense weather events, dangerous heat, longer allergy seasons and more. The impacts stemming from climate change are increasing health harms – and healthcare costs – for families across the country. Families like mine are increasingly at risk from these impacts and are looking to you to protect our health.

It is not just carbon pollution that is emitted from dirty power plants. Additional pollutants like sulfur dioxide and nitrogen oxide emissions and particulate matter are also leading to health harms, particularly for communities located right near a plant. EPA estimates that this rule will reduce not only carbon but other dangerous co-pollutants and even avoid at least 1,300 premature deaths. Requiring power plants to reduce emissions will have immediate health benefits for local communities and will help ensure that we can avoid bearing the costs and burden of catastrophic climate change.

Please finalize the strongest possible limits on carbon emissions from all existing and new power plants and ensure that nearby communities are protected from dangerous air pollution.

Sincerely,
